For Immediate Release

Committed to remaining on the cutting-edge in the development of IT products and services, the Information Technology Department at SABIS® Educational Services was recently re-appraised at Capability Maturity Model Integration (CMMI) Level 3.

CMMI is a process improvement and appraisal program that is used to guide process improvement across a project, division, or an entire organization. Under the CMMI methodology, processes are rated according to their maturity levels and awarded a maturity level rating ranging from 1 to 5 or a capability level achievement profile.

"We are very pleased to have maintained our level 3 rating," said Mr. Elie Dagher, Director – Software Development at SES. "The rating demonstrates that the department has institutionalized the standard software engineering processes and adopted the culture of continuous improvement of product quality and user satisfaction."

This is the second time the IT Department has received a Level 3 rating since KPMG — one of the largest professional services companies in the world — first awarded SABIS® CMMI certification in July 2010. SABIS® shares this rating with approximately 2,800 organizations worldwide including Airbus, Boeing, IBM, and NASA.

SABIS® is a global education management organization, distinguished by a 127-year track record in the operation of Pre-K and K–12 schools in 15 countries on four continents. SABIS® places a high value on being a leader in the field of educational technology and continuously strives to set industry standards.
